COMMENCEMENT 1992

Washington State University, on the occasion of its 96th annual commencement, cordially welcomes all those who have come to the Pullman campus to share in ceremonies honoring the members of the graduating class of 1992. All are encouraged to attend the College and School Commencement Recognition Ceremonies being held throughout the day. To the members of the Class of 1992, the university extends sincere congratulations.

Washington State University is dedicated to the preparation of students for productive lives and professional careers, to basic and applied research in a variety of areas, and to the dissemination of knowledge. The university consists of seven colleges, a graduate school, an Intercollegiate Center for Nursing Education in Spokane and Yakima, the Center for Hotel and Restaurant Administration in Seattle, and branch campuses in Spokane, the Tri-Cities, and Vancouver. It also has extension offices in all 39 counties, four research centers, and 16 small business development offices statewide. The university also is responsible for administration of the Washington Higher Education Telecommunications System, which transmits courses to four locales.

For nearly a century, Washington State University has offered strong and diverse programs. From its founding in 1890, liberal arts and sciences have occupied an important place in the curriculum along with business, education, nursing, pharmacy, and the traditional land-grant programs in agriculture, home economics, veterinary medicine, and engineering. WSU now offers more than 100 major fields of study to undergraduate students. Bachelor's degrees are available in all major areas. Master's and doctoral degrees are available in most subject areas. The Honors Program is one of the few all-university programs for superior students at a major American institution of higher learning.

The faculty, including a substantial number of scholars with national and international reputations, is charged with the development of instructional methods that will open students' minds to the most recent knowledge and discoveries. The opportunity for students to know and work closely with their instructors is one advantage of a residential campus.

Washington State University at Pullman is one of the largest residential universities west of the Mississippi. Of the approximately 14,000 undergraduates and 2,000 graduate students, about half live on campus in university housing or in fraternities or sororities. Here, students of diverse social, economic, and ethnic backgrounds from throughout the nation and more than 80 foreign lands come together in a community in which education is the principal industry and human development the primary concern.

Approximately 1,700 additional students were enrolled in courses this year at the university's branch campuses. As the branch campuses in Spokane, Tri-Cities, and Vancouver develop over the next five years, this enrollment is expected to multiply to several thousand, providing educational opportunities for place-bound citizens for whom access to higher education heretofore has been limited.

The 1992 Commencement Program includes those degree candidates from August 1991 through May 1992. Those previously awarded degrees are denoted with an asterisk (*). Appearance of a name in this program is presumptive evidence of graduation and graduation honors, but it must not in any sense be regarded as conclusive. The university diploma, signed and sealed by its proper officers, remains the official testimony of the possession of the degree.

AN HISTORICAL VIEW OF COMMENCEMENT¹

BACKGROUND

Universities that developed during the Middle Ages formulated academic practices that are still followed today. This medieval heritage has provided us with a teaching institution—the university; a method of measuring academic progress—degrees; and a structure for an appropriate ceremony recognizing the student's achievement—commencement.

In medieval times, a master (from the Latin magister, “teacher”) was a person licensed to teach by the chancellor of the Cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris. As the number of masters increased, they ultimately formed a guild. The word universitas was a common term applied to any collectivity, including that of guilds. The university probably took form around 1170 as a guild of teachers rather than a union of faculties. It was sanctioned by Pope Innocent III in 1210 in a bull which recognized and approved the written statutes of the teachers' guild. By approximately 1250 the University of Paris masters were divided into four faculties: theology, canon law, medicine, and the arts. The arts students, by far the greatest number, correspond to our “undergraduates” of today. They ultimately organized themselves into “nations” based on the geographical regions of Europe from which they came. The universities, international in their appeal both to students and scholars, sought and received support from the papacy.

Students attended classes, heard lectures, and engaged in disputations, but there appears to have been no examination unless a student determined to become a master. After four or five years of resident study, the student, indicating an intention to become a master, would be tested. Passing these trials, the candidate would don a special gown and take a seat with the bachalari, or bachelors. This ceremony was often followed by a feast. Between the baccalaureate and the master's degree, the student obtained a licentiate, an authorization to teach.

Until the Civil War, the American college system was based on the English model. Most colleges stood alone, rather than being part of a university, and the baccalaureate was the only earned degree awarded. The curriculum was invariably classical and essentially the same as in the Middle Ages. Since there was little opportunity for postbaccalaureate study in the United States, students sought higher education abroad. After 1815, perhaps reflecting the nationalism born of the War of 1812, students increasingly attended German universities and returned with the concept of higher degrees as earned degrees based on a specified curriculum and embracing independent research.

The post-Civil War period received impetus from another direction also. The Morrill Act, adopted by Congress in 1862, established the land-grant college system—of which WSU is a part—which led to a rapid increase in public universities and an extension of graduate study. The expansion of the curriculum into new fields of specialization to meet the needs of an increasingly industrial society led to multiplication of degree titles to identify the areas of educational experience and specialization.

COMMENCEMENT

Commencement is the special occasion that provides public recognition of the academic achievement of students after four or more years of study by awarding a diploma specifying a degree. This diploma is an official document certifying the completion of past academic experience.

The first WSU commencement was held June 24, 1897, with eight members being advanced to degrees—three in engineering, one in biology, two in economics, and two in English. This followed a legislative act in 1895 empowering the college to grant the usual academic and honorary degrees and to issue diplomas.¹ With the construction of Bryan Hall in 1909, commencement moved to the well equipped Bryan Auditorium. Enrollment and the number of degree candidates increased over the years, and commencement moved to Bohler Gymnasium following its construction in 1928. Following World War II and the burgeoning enrollment created by the return of students receiving veteran's benefits (GI Bill), commencement was moved outdoors to Rogers Field in the football stadium. From 1949 through 1973, commencement was held on Rogers Field. Since it was always possible that inclement weather would disrupt the ceremonies, it was necessary to duplicate arrangements in Bohler Gymnasium, but only twice in those years—1954 and 1963—was it necessary to move the outdoor ceremony indoors. In 1973, with the completion of the Performing Arts Coliseum, the ceremony moved indoors permanently. Commencement in the coliseum during President Glenn Terrell's years was sometimes boisterous and always exciting. However, because of the increasing size of the graduating class, undergraduates paraded through the ceremony in double file, and there was insufficient time to identify them individually by name or degree.

In 1985, shortly after his inaugural, President Smith accepted a recommendation made by the chair of the Commencement Committee to decentralize commencement according to college. Thus, effective with the graduating class of May 1986, an all-university commencement assembly was conducted, followed by seven or more individual ceremonies by college, all in the same day. This procedure is followed today, with the pleasant result that undergraduates as well as graduate students are now recognized by name, college, degree, honors, and hometown, and photographers take individual color snapshots of each candidate. The new format has met with complete acceptance by the students and their parents, and the various commencement ceremonies have the appropriate dignity required for such events.

THE UNIVERSITY MACE

The University Mace, a traditional symbol of authority, was created for the inauguration of Samuel H. Smith as the eighth president of Washington State University in 1986 and is to lead the faculty march today. The mace is borne by the chair of the Faculty Senate with an honor guard consisting of the presidents of the undergraduate and graduate student associations. Lawrence Meinert carries it today, accompanied by Jim Hanna, ASWSU president, and Weikang "Ken" Wang, GPSA president.

The two-foot long, nine-pound scepter is cast in silver and bronze and features a globe atop a laurel branch, wrapped in a silver ribbon and inscribed, "Washington State University." According to designer and craftsman, Tim Doeblner of WSU's Department of Fine Arts, "the globe represents the universality of education and the quest for knowledge. Laurel crowns were presented to academicians by the ancient Greeks."

ACADEMIC ATTIRE

Academic dress arose by a process of evolution and modification of the robes worn by medieval students, who were usually clerics in the cathedral schools and monasteries established by the church. As early as 1321, a medieval statute required that all doctors, licentiates, and bachelors wear academic gowns and hoods. Gowns were necessary for warmth in the unheated medieval buildings; and hoods may have been designed to cover tonsured heads. Today, immediately after receiving a charter, new institutions adopt a distinctive design for academic attire expressive of their individuality.

On May 26, 1895, a group of institutional representatives met at Columbia University to establish a uniform code for academic attire in this country.

The approved academic attire is composed of a cap, a gown, and a hood. The basic article of the attire is the gown, which is usually black in color for all degrees. The basic design for gowns is similar for all degrees; the minor variations in fullness and length of sleeves and trimming are indicative of degree levels. Cotton poplin fabric is used for the bachelor's and master's gown, and ribbed rayon or silk material is reserved for the doctor's gown.

The hood has become the colorful standard bearer of academic symbolism. By examining the hood, an informed observer should be able to identify the level of the degree, the academic field of learning in which the degree was earned, and the institution that conferred the degree. The hood is made of the same material as the gown. It varies in length from three feet, to three and a half feet, to four feet, representing the bachelor's, master's, and doctor's degrees, respectively. The color or colors of the lining of the hood indicate the institution that conferred the degree (crimson and gray for WSU). The hood is trimmed or edged in a border of velvet either two, three, or five inches in width for the respective degrees. The border color represents the faculty or field of study in which the degree was awarded. At WSU, bachelor's degree candidates do not wear hoods.

The approved cap of the academic costume is the mortarboard or Oxford cap—a stiff board nine inches square, usually covered in cotton poplin, Russell cord, or spun rayon, placed on a soft cap made of the same material and joined in a pointed design in front and back. The front of the cap is shorter than the back, but the color is always that of the gown and is uniformly black for the four-year degrees. Soft square-topped caps are permissible for women. The use of velvet material has been reserved for the cap for the doctor's degree. A silk cord with a tassel made of many strands of threads is attached to a button in the center of the board. The length of the cord and tassel may vary with the degree of the wearer. The tassel and cord may be black for any degree, but gold metallic cord and tassel have been approved for the doctor's cap. The tassel may reflect the color of the field of learning in which the degree was earned, and a few institutions use tassels of varied colors to indicate academic honors.

The committee of the American Council on Education in its "Academic Costume Code" states the following:

For all academic purposes—including trimming of doctor's gowns, edging of hoods, and tassels of caps—the colors associated with the different subjects are as follows:

COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER

James R. Ellis

The 1990 Winner of the Washington Medal of Merit and current chairman of the Board of Directors of the Washington State Convention and Trade Center, James R. Ellis, will deliver the Commencement Address at this morning's All-University Assembly.

A native of Seattle and a graduate of Yale University and the University of Washington School of Law, Ellis has long been active in local, regional and national affairs. He served as chairman of the Seattle Forward Thrust program which secured public authorization for the Kingdome, marine aquarium, many park improvements and transit system that operates throughout King County.

He has served as vice president of the National Municipal League, a member of the National Water Commission and the Urban Transportation Advisory Council of the U.S. Department of Transportation. In 1979, he chaired the Save Our Local Farmlands Committee which prepared and secured voter approval of a program for public acquisition of 13,000 acres of endangered farmlands in King County. He currently is a trustee of Resources for the Future, Washington, D.C.

In addition to many municipal and state awards, Ellis has received the American Institute for Public Service National Jefferson Award, the Fiorello LaGuardia Award for contributions to America's cities, the Environmental Award from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, and the American Motors National Conservation Award.

He served 12 years as a regent of the University of Washington and has received honorary doctorates from Seattle University and Lewis and Clark College, Portland, Oregon.

A veteran of World War II, Ellis completed law school and joined the Seattle law firm of Preston, Thorgrimson & Horowitz. In 1952, he became a deputy prosecuting attorney for King County, then returned to the firm in 1953 as a partner. The firm is now known as Preston, Thorgrimson, Shidler, Gates & Ellis. He is a member of the local, state and national bar associations and is a Fellow of the American Bar Foundation.

Ellis' brother John is a member of the WSU Board of Regents. A nephew, John F. Ellis, is a senior in electrical engineering at WSU.

PRESIDENT'S FACULTY EXCELLENCE AWARD

The President's Faculty Excellence Award program is designed to recognize and encourage exceptional achievement by Washington State University faculty in instruction, research and creative activity, and public service. Those receiving the award have been selected by a careful process of peer review, and their careers represent truly outstanding accomplishments in their respective fields. The funds to support this program have been made possible through private donations to the Washington State University Foundation and the generosity of Lee and Jody Sahlin.

INSTRUCTION

Richard S. Williams, Associate Professor
Department of History

Because teaching as a scholarly enterprise begins with what the instructor knows, those who instruct must be well informed and steeped in the knowledge of their disciplines. Based upon these "Rosetta stones" of education and enhanced by a broad academic background, a deeply ingrained contagious intellectual curiosity, and a true concern for students, Dr. Richard S. Williams has bridged the distance between instructor knowledge and student learning, and fully merits the President's Faculty Excellence Award for Instruction. Dr. Williams' outstanding success in instruction has been derived from a deep and careful scholarship combined with the ability to present complex information in a manner that produces creative thinking and the desire by students to continue their learning after their university days are completed. Peppering his instruction with puns, colorful anecdotes, and humor, and salting the mixture with a slightly irreverent approach to life, Dr. Williams continues to enhance his reputation as one of Washington State University's outstanding educators.

RESEARCH AND CREATIVE ACTIVITY

Rodney Croteau, Professor and Fellow
Institute of Biological Chemistry

Since becoming a faculty member at Washington State University in 1975, Dr. Rodney Croteau has distinguished himself by single-handedly uncovering the fundamental biochemistry of terpenoids and elucidating the physiology and function of these compounds in plants. He himself designed the specialized techniques required for isolating the relevant enzymes from various plants and for analysis of the terpenoid products. The results of his research have improved the yields of peppermint and spearmint oil and enhanced our understanding of plant defense mechanisms. He has composed over 130 publications and has delivered numerous invited addresses to scientific congresses of the highest importance. Having served on the Editorial Board of the Archives of Biochemistry and Biophysics since 1981, he was elevated to Executive Editor in 1990.

PUBLIC SERVICE

John C. Little, County Extension Agent, 4-H
King County

"I'm here because I want to make the world a better place for children." These words, spoken by John Little, capture the essence of this remarkable WSU Cooperative Extension County 4-H Agent. John Little broke new ground for Cooperative Extension programming by creating 4-H Challenge, a youth intervention program that is making a difference in the lives of young people in Seattle. Now, over 8,000 young people annually participate in a variety of King County 4-H programs. Augmenting traditional funding with grants, volunteers and community cooperation, John Little is very effectively carrying WSU's public service mission to a new audience, the young people in our cities.

SEATING ARRANGEMENT FOR DEGREE CANDIDATES AND GUESTS

OVERFLOW SEATING DIRECTLY ABOVE EACH COLLEGE

Washington, My Washington

Washington, My Washington,
The Crimson and the Gray,
'Tis the songs of memory
That we sing today,
When the sad hours come to you
And sorrows 'round you play,
Just sing the songs of Washington
The Crimson and the Gray,
Just sing the songs of Washington
The Crimson and the Gray.
